CUSTOMS REQUIREMENTS FOR SENDING OFF ISLAND

Electronic customs data is now required when sending goods/merchandise off Island.

Electronic Advance Data (EAD)

If you're sending goods/merchandise overseas, whether to the UK or internationally, your parcel requires an electronic customs declaration to be completed.

Due to significant changes in the international trading landscape, paper based CN22 and CN23 are no longer valid, and this information is now required electronically and in advance of items arriving at their destination.

What information is needed?

In addition to the information that was required when completing paper based CN22 and CN23 forms, senders must now also state the quantity, weight and value of each item within the parcel.

Creating EAD labels

Option 1: Online

The most convenient and cost-effective way to create your EAD postage labels is through our online portal. By registering for an account, you can create, buy and print your labels at a time and place that's convenient for you.

2% ONLINE DISCOUNT
on standard postage rates

Option 2: At our Post Offices

If you are unable to use our online postage portal, you can visit any island-wide post office, bringing with you the required information when sending items overseas.

In-store, one of our counter staff will complete the form on your behalf, all you have to do is address your parcel as usual and supply the description, quantity, value and weight of each item within the parcel.

Providing Electronic Advance Data (EAD) improves security, reduces delays and provides customers with a better international service. Items without EAD can be held in the destination country, delayed, returned or even destroyed.
